Exercises 2.1

To type the indicated passage one would write in \TeX :

“‘I always use an en–dash instead of a hyphen when specifying page numbers like ‘480––491’ in a bibliography.’”

Which will be rendered as:

“I always use an en-dash instead of a hyphen when specifying page numbers like ‘480–491’ in a bibliography.”

Exercises 2.2

I’m assuming that four hyphens in a row would be greedily parsed (taking as many hypens as possible), such that it is rendered as an em-dash followed by a normal hyphen. Four hyphens is rendered like this: —

Update from the future: I was right!

Exercises 2.3

An English word containing two ligatures is “fluffy”. (The fl and the ff).
